The Division of Undergraduate Studies invites nominations and applications for one position in AY 2016-17:

Director, Institute for Civic & Community Engagement

Working closely with the ICCE Faculty & Community Advisory Council, the Director will provide leadership and direction for the Institute’s academic mission. The Director is primarily responsible for promoting and supporting academic service-learning, campus community partnerships, and civic engagement activities that inspire civic responsibility, enhance learning, and prepare students for a life of engaged citizenship. The Director will serve as a liaison to the Academic Senate and other campus centers and programs relevant to faculty research, teaching, and community engagement.

The Director will advance and provide leadership in the areas of curriculum and scholarship; working with faculty colleagues, the director will support the development and application of student learning outcomes for community service-learning courses and of community-based research projects. The Director will oversee and help lead professional development programs to increase faculty understanding and expertise in service-learning and community-based research. The Director is also expected to maintain currency in the field of engaged scholarship.

The ideal candidate must be an Associate or Full Professor at SF State and should also have knowledge and experience working in various forms of experiential education and civic engagement, and a commitment to the common good and social justice. Other qualifications include:

- A doctoral degree and tenure in an academic department.
- A sound grasp of academic service-learning pedagogy and experience in community engaged scholarship.
- An awareness of and commitment to the value and practice of assessment of community service-learning and community-engaged scholarship.
- A demonstrated understanding of the principles and processes for developing and sustaining partnerships between the University and the community.
- The ability to work productively with faculty, administration, and Academic Senate to support and implement policies that align with the university’s strategic plan, especially relating to community engaged scholarship, civic learning, and civic engagement activities.
- The ability to advise faculty, departments, and colleges about the integration of community-engaged scholarship in tenure and promotion guidelines.

- The ability to communicate and support Institute goals to students, faculty, administrators, and other stakeholders.
- The ability to foster an inclusive, transparent, and collegial environment.

ICCE Director will report to the Dean of the Division of Undergraduate Education and Academic Planning, at a .4 TB AY appointment (2 course release per semester with a summer stipend), with a 3-year renewable contract.

Interested applicants should submit the following items:

a) a cover letter detailing relevant expertise and a statement on the future direction of ICCE,
b) a current curriculum vitae, and
c) a letter of support from an individual (a colleague, a student, a community partner) who can support the nomination.

Please send nominations and/or applications to Jen Gasang (jlgasang@sfsu.edu), Interim Associate Director, ICCE, by March 31st.
