

HIV Testing Sites

See other side for clinic sites, hours, and phone numbers

Anonymous vs. Confidential

Anonymous testing uses code numbers to identify your test. Your name is never used. You use the code to get your results. You are the only person who knows your results. With anonymous testing, you have complete control in deciding who to tell and when.

With confidential testing, your name is recorded and linked to your test results. Even though this information is kept private, others may have access to this information, including health care providers, your insurance company, and the health department.

Some testing locations offer both confidential and anonymous testing. Be sure to find out who will have access to your test results before you get tested. Several of the testing sites listed below change their hours of operation periodically. We suggest calling in advance to make an appointment or ask about the availability of drop-in hours to get tested.

The STOP AIDS Project is hitting the streets with HIV testing and education with a new Mobile Testing RV.

You may also call 502-TEST for testing information.
