CSU Fully Online Program Information Sheet

What is the CSU Fully Online Program?
The CSU Fully Online program provides an opportunity for eligible matriculated students to enroll in one online course per term offered at another CSU. The program’s goal is to increase access to high demand courses and to assist students in graduating in a reasonable time frame.

Why would a student consider taking a course through the CSU Fully Online Program?
- As an alternative way to meet General Education, University-wide, and major requirements
- For added flexibility in course scheduling; since courses are fully online, they can fit into students’ academic and life commitments
- To get access to classes that may be difficult to register for at SF State

Who is eligible to take CSU Fully Online courses?
To be eligible to take fully online courses, undergraduate students must:
- Be in good standing at SF State with a minimum GPA of a 2.0 in all completed coursework
- Have completed at least one term at SF State, earning 12 or more units
- Be enrolled at SF State during the term they wish to enroll in CSU fully online courses with full-time tuition and fees paid

Will it cost more to enroll for an online course at another CSU?
- California residents attending full-time in the semester in which they want to enroll in CSU Online courses will not pay any additional fees beyond their regular full-time tuition and fees. Nonresident students are required to pay the additional per-unit fees to the CSU where they are taking the online course.

When can students enroll?
The “Enroll in Course Match” link (which will take students to the CSU Fully Online Course schedule) will appear in the Student Center January 5 – February 5, 2016. This is the time period in which students can enroll in CSU fully online courses that have seats available.

How do students enroll in a CSU Fully Online course?
When students click on the “Enroll in CourseMatch” link they will have access to a schedule of fully online courses with seats available. A link to a public list of all CSU Fully Online courses will also be displayed. This list is sortable and can be used to assist students in viewing course descriptions, course levels (upper or lower division), and whether a course meets GE, University-wide, or major requirements.

If the GE tag on the course says “GWAR” can this course be used to meet the GWAR requirement at SF State?
This is a generic tag established by the CSU and should not be used to make decisions regarding the SF State GWAR requirement. Students looking for GWAR approved courses for their major must check with a department advisor for approval.

How can students get help in selecting an appropriate CSU Fully Online course?
Students needing assistance selecting courses that satisfy a GE or University-wide requirement can contact the Undergraduate Advising Center www.sfsu.edu/~advising. For help choosing major courses, students should consult with a major advisor or their department chair.
